President J. A. MacLean,

University of Manitoba.

Dear President MacLean:

The invitation that I sent out was meant for the Presidents of the Universities, but if you wish to bring a member of your staff, we shall be glad to put a room at his disposal, and of course to have him at the conference. From the correspondence that I have had with Queen's I fancy that more than one member of their staff will be present, and probably we shall have several representatives from the University of Toronto. I can hardly say, however, that we are going formally to ask the teaching staff of each University to send one or more representative but leave it to the President to decide whom he wishes to bring with him.

Yours sincerely,

President.

President MacLean,

University of Manitoba.

Dear President MacLean:

I understand from your letter that you think I should ask various members of the Conference to prepare papers on some such subjects as are outlined. Probably it would give interest to the discussion, but it is somewhat delicate for me to choose those who shall present the papers.

I had not thought that we would throw the conference open to the public. I fancy that there may be too many matters bearing on our own definite problems to permit us to have our discussions in public. I had not thought either that it would be necessary for us to have printed transactions as yet. That should be decided, I fancy, by the conference itself at its close.

Might it not be well for me to write to various members of the conference and ask whether they have any written communications which they would be willing to read so as to have the discussions arranged for ?

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
